If you haven't been on the online dating scene for long, you're probably not sure if this kind of dating is possible. Registering for this type of a deal means you will have to travel thousands of kilometres to meet Russian women. Doesn't it seem like a lot of trouble and also way more pricey than traditional cyber dating? Well, yes, it does, but you should know that thousands of western men are actually ready to take a step further to find the love of their life through these tour packages.

The cost of your tour usually covers most of the expenses – airport transfers, flight tickets, your accommodation and services of professional translators. Dating companies are trying their best to provide the dating experience of a lifetime. All you have to do is show up and date Russian girls! Besides the costs mentioned above – social activities, transfers, accommodation, etc., the tours can also offer special promotions like membership discounts to the company's website or credits for services once the tour is over.

The length of each tour is different too and depends on the company you've selected, but in order to enable you to take your time, the tours last about twelve days.

Russia is very popular among tourists who travel there to see the historical sights and beautiful scenery. The romance tours generally take place in Volgograd, Novgorod, St. Petersburg and Moscow, although other villages can be visited as well. These places are carefully chosen, taking the number of scenic spots, exclusive restaurants and, needless to say, the number of local ladies in the area into account.

There is no one standard price for a romance tour as this varies for different agencies, as do the activities on each tour. Expect that the price ranges from $2,500-$5,000. Of course, there are special rates available if you book your tour early.

When choosing the perfect romance package, you'll be surprised to find that it will be very similar to choosing a holiday package. You might want to ask yourself questions like:

-Which tour can I afford?

-What experience am I expecting from this tour?

-Which tour has received the best reviews?

It is important to know what you're going there for as knowing your goals will help you make your choice. Make sure you find out about everything the tour includes – the type of your motel, planned activities, the meals that are served, etc. Other than going there to meet Russian women and find the love of your life, you want to have the best experience of your life.
