Have you been playing with the idea of signing up on an international dating site and finding a Russian date?

According to some guys, this is one of the best ways to meet single women online, especially if you're interested in cross cultural relationships. Before you rush online to sign up with a suitable site, take some time to consider the three questions below. Finding an answer to these questions will tell you what to expect when you become a member and evaluate whether your expectations are realistic or not.

1. What are your expectations?

If you're familiar with the international dating scene, you might have heard the stereotypes about going out with Russian women which has given some guys false hope about the kind of women they can see on Russian dating sites. Some men believe that regardless of their own age, personality and physical appearance, they can definitely find a Russian date who looks like a model. Another thing they like to believe is that a Russian lady doesn't mind if her boyfriend is the dominant part in the relationship. However, these statements are not true as these girls know their value and they want men to make an effort too when trying to win their hearts. If these false statements are the only reason why you're signing up on a dating site then you are set for disappointment. To enjoy your international dating experience, it's important that you evaluate your needs and wishes carefully.

2. What are your best qualities?

Before you join with any dating website, make sure you take time to think about the qualities that you have to offer. Mention these in all letters that you send and also add it to your profile. Women are usually attracted to characteristics like intelligence, a fun personality, charm and wit and you should do your best to demonstrate these qualities. Simply speaking about them is not enough, you have to be able to show why you're a good match for them. Make some harmless jokes or say something funny if your best quality is your sense of humour. If your intelligence is what you want to show off, talk about topics that show you have the necessary knowledge. Even though many men believe that Russian girls will date just about anyone, it's still important to work your charm to impress them.

3. What kind of website do you want to join?

Even though online dating is nothing new, some guys are still not sure how exactly Russian date sites work. They think that once they sign up, they are guaranteed a suitable match or that the women on those sites are somehow for sale. If these are the reasons you join a dating website, bear in mind, you won't find what you're looking for. Online dating sites are merely a way for single men and women to meet and nothing is assured.

These are just some of the things that you should carefully consider before you become a member of any given dating site. Do not buy any contact details unless you are one hundred per cent sure that your source is trustworthy.
